

Good medical practice consultation

Newsletter text

The General Medical Council (GMC) want to hear your views on an updated version of Good medical practice. This sets the standards of professional behaviour and patient care expected from all doctors in the UK.

The proposals include changes to help tackle discrimination, bullying and to promote fairness and inclusion.

It's important that the GMC has feedback from a diverse range of doctors. Make sure you share your voice by taking part in a short, confidential survey for healthcare professionals

The consultation also gives you the opportunity to comment on what we say about dishonesty, public confidence and the context doctors work in, which we know are of particular concern now.

The consultation is open until 20 July 2022. You'll also receive a certificate for your portfolio for getting involved.

For more information about the consultation and why it's important to take part, please visit the GMC's Good medical practice webpages or watch our video why are you updating Good medical practice - YouTube
